TRANSFER STUDENT CONNECT

The Social Sciences Transfer Connections Course (SocSci 189) provides students the information and training necessary to prepare for graduate school or a professional career. This course also gives transfers exclusive opportunities for future internships in all areas of the social sciences. Students will find crucial instruction on graduate school and the application process, and will be equipped with the fundamentals of scholarly research--a skill necessary for almost every graduate program in the social sciences. Occasional panelists will introduce transfers to the programs and campus services that will help facilitate the transition to the university and strengthen the student's academic success. The course also addresses practical training in time management, study skills, and much more.
